

Pine Tree Poetry

Sparking great poetry writing by student writers for their peers

In honor of budding and accomplished poets in grades K–12 and
the celebration of National Poetry Month in April, students are invited to write a poem on their favorite subject for review and publishing consideration in the Pine Tree Poetry 2008 Collection.

How it works:

- Poems written may be part of a class poetry lesson, an enrichment project or written by students on their own.
- All poems must be the students' own work. We do not tolerate plagiarism!
- Any style of poem is fine.
- Carefully handwritten or computer printed poems need to have the student's name and home mailing address on the page and may be sent to us at:

Pine Tree Poetry
2966 South Church Street
Suite 304
Burlington, NC 27215

- The deadline for mailing is May 15, 2008.
- Our group of editors will read every poem we receive and will choose the best ones from all grade levels to be included in the Pine Tree Poetry 2008 Collection.
- Poets chosen for the collection will receive a letter from us, and the Pine Tree Poetry 2008 Collection will roll off the press in January 2009.
- The school in each state that submits the most poems for consideration (one per student) along with a completed School Submission Form will receive a $500 award from Pine Tree Poetry in October 2008 that may be used for library materials.
- Each school that submits their students' poems accompanied by the School Submission Form will receive a free copy of the book for their library.
- The Pine Tree Poetry 2008 Collection will be available in January 2009.
- Students are invited to buy a book if their poem is chosen, but buying a book is not required in order to be selected for publication.

Thank you for your participation.
We're looking forward to reading your poems!
